The Boston "Tea Party"

In 1773, however, Britain furnished Adams and his allies with an incendiary issue. The powerful East India Company, finding itself in critical financial straits, appealed to the British government, which granted it a monopoly on all tea exported to the colonies. The government also permitted the East India Company to supply retailers directly, bypassing colonial wholesalers. By then, most of the tea consumed in America was imported illegally, duty-free. By selling its tea through its own agents at a price well under the customary one, the East India Company made smuggling unprofitable and threatened to eliminate the independent colonial merchants. Accused not only by the loss of the tea trade but also by the monopolistic practice involved, colonial traders joined the radicals agitating for independence.

In ports up and down the Atlantic coast, agents of the East India Company were forced to resign. New shipments of tea were either returned to England or warehoused. In Boston, however, the agents defied the colonists; with the support of the royal governor, they made preparations to land incoming cargoes regardless of opposition. On the night of December 16, 1773, a band of men disguised as Mohawk Indians and led by Samuel Adams boarded three British ships lying at anchor and dumped their tea cargo into Boston harbor. Doubting their countrymen's commitment to principle, they feared that if the tea were landed, colonists would actually purchase the tea and pay the tax.

A crisis now confronted Britain. The East India Company had carried out a parliamentary statute. If the destruction of the tea went unpunished, Parliament would admit to the world that it had no control over the colonies. Official opinion in Britain almost unanimously condemned the Boston Tea Party as an act of vandalism and advocated legal measures to bring the insurgent colonists into line.

A Rare Find

9 Maria and Todd discovered an old vinyl record while 18 rummaging through a cabinet in the attic. "Thelma Louise 29 Hopkins!" Maria cried. "I read about her in a magazine. This 42 could be worth millions!" As it turned out, it was not worth quite 54 that much, but it was an extremely rare recording, one of the 61 few original Thelma Louise Hopkins recordings left.
71 Mr. Sanchez, an executive at an auction company, told the 82 two that it could be worth thousands, so they should consider 93 selling it. Todd was amenable, but Maria was not convinced, not 102 until she found out more information about Thelma Louise 112 Hopkins. At the library they listened to tapes of her 122 songs, saw photographs of her that were decades old, and 133 looked over a biography about the singer's life and music. They 144 also found an article on the Internet about what Thelma Louise 154 had been doing recently. She was still employed occasionally as 163 a performer because she needed the money. Although Thelma 172 originally had been compensated well, she never owned the 182 copyrights of her songs, which meant that while other people
193 still profited from her original recordings, she never saw a penny
199 of the tremendous wealth they made.
204 "That's not fair!" Todd cried.
215 A few minutes later, Maria called Mr. Sanchez "We still want 226 to auction off the record," she told him, "but we want
238 the proceeds to go to Thelma Louise Hopkins. Can you help us 240 do that?"
251 "I sure can," said Mr. Sanchez. Then he added, "You two are doing a commendable thing." 256

1. What is the story mostly about?
2. Why did Todd and Maria decide to give away the money?
